[In this case, one "F" married in 1887, and in 1895 his wife was placed in an asylum for the insane. Afterward "F" married again and made mortgages and deeds, joined in by his second wife, and died in 1809, leaving a large estate. On his death a committee was appointed for his first wife, who brought suit to recover her dower in all his property. It was tried before a referee, who reported in favor of the insane woman, giving her dower in the property, and cutting off the second wife. The report was confirmed by the Supreme Court.]
